

Elder Rector Sees Charity's Aspects

Who possessed of charity is everything else. Charity is the greatest of all attributes," Elder Hartman Rector, Jr., said at the Brigham Young Devotional Assembly Sunday.

Elder Rector, a member of the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, defined charity as "pure love and pure sacrifice." He said in charity we have real charity "it must be something."

Referring to the Doctrine and Covenants, Elder Rector outlined the qualities any laborer in charity must have to qualify for work: "Faith, hope, charity, and love with an eye single to the glory of God."

He defined faith as "a strong belief plus action." Faith allows us to act like we know it's true even though we don't," he said. Hope is "a part of faith; a strong desire for something," and love is a "concern for someone or something—a tender concern."

Elder Rector spoke of the "eye single to the glory of God," "If a person asked the question, 'If a person were blind could he still have an eye single to the glory of God?' He answered his own question by saying, 'Of course, 'eye' does not refer to the physical eye.' We must not do what we want to do but "what He (God) wants us to do or else we have 'eye' trouble."

Elder Rector suggested to students that they make up their minds "to do something, even if they do not want to do it." Recalling King Benjamin's speech in the Book of Mormon, that said "only when you are in the service of your fellow men are you in the service of your God," he challenged students to "think of other people first."

Listing the ten virtues that were given by God as qualities for effective service, Elder Rector said charity was among the most important. The list also included faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, brotherly kindness, godliness, humility and diligence.

To become godlike, according to the General Authority, "We must become perfect in everything." He also reminded students that in the Spirit World "learning is 100 times faster than here on earth." However, he added that "repenting is 100 times faster on earth than in the Spirit World." Therefore, he said, "we must do what we can do best where we are."

"...By Their Fruits."

Min cherries ripen in Utah Valley, they don't wait for the summer, said Elder A. Theodore Tuttle, of the First Council of the Seventy, who slipped away from the Church Office Building in Salt Lake City last Monday long enough to pluck salt hags worth of cherries in his orchard eight miles north of Provo.

Independents Call For Return To Constitution

The Freeman of Centerville unanimously selected as the Independent nominee for the United States Senate at the state convention held in Salt Lake City Sunday. The man, who resigned as State Representative in order to accept nomination, stated that he would offer the voters of Utah a "state choice" in the 1970 Senate race. Calling the Republicans "ne-too socialists," he charged that the Democrats and Republicans have violated the Constitutional rights upon which America was founded.

Called on Utah voters to save the Constitution from the programs such as model metropolitan government, improvement districts, and taxes for Federal pollution. He also urged that the Government get out of business ventures and turn the economy back to free enterprise.

American Independent

Party's choice of candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives from the First Congressional District is Dan Worthington, a Utah businessman. In accepting the nomination, Worthington called for "Victory in Viet Nam." He condemned the Nixon and Johnson's administrations' policies in Viet Nam as being "one of the worst crimes of all," sacrificing the lives of our brothers, sons, and fathers in a no-win war."

Stephen D. Marsh, the American Independent Party's choice for Congress from the Second Congressional District, stated that both the Republicans and Democrats have become "proponents of collectivism." "We are not conservatives. We do not wish to conserve the welfare-statism and socialism created in this country by the present twin-party system. We are individualists, fighting to preserve our freedom against the evil forces of collectivism."

Forum Honors Utah Pioneers

The Utah pioneer heritage as well as patriotism will be the focus of the July 23 forum assembly at Brigham Young University. The assembly, to be held at 10 a.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, Harris Fine Arts Center, will feature a singing program by the SongSmiths. The SongSmiths have performed in the Hollywood Paladium, the University of Redlands, the U.S. Princess Louie, and for high schools, junior high schools, social, civic and business clubs, hospitals, PTAs and churches all over the Southern California and Nevada areas.

Mt. Timpanogos Awaits Hikers

Some six thousand hikers are expected at the annual assault on Mt. Timpanogos Aug. 1 and extensive plans have been made to safeguard them.

Preparations have been made for security, crowd control, parking, and highway safety on the hike. A doctor will be at Emerald Lake and a helicopter will stand by in Provo to lift persons off the mountain in case the emergency arises. Two-way radio sets will be manned at strategic spots along the trail and the Order of the Arrow will give assistance to hikers. Others helping with first aid and safety will be the Sheriffs posse on horses, the Forest Service, and Alpine Club from BYU.

Snow and trail conditions are rated as "excellent" for the hike according to Stephen M. Rushton, district ranger at Pleasant Grove, U.S. Forest Service.

Both the Aspen Grove and Timpanoosneeke trails will be used by the climbers this year as they trek up the 12,000-foot peak. The first hikers will be allowed to start at 4 a.m. Beginning at 6:30 a.m. Summit Club badges will be awarded by the Provo Chamber of Commerce to an expected 3,500 who reach the top. Since the hike was inaugurated in 1912, over 55,000 persons have reached the top and enjoyed the breathtaking view of several Utah Valleys.

The U.S. Forest Service encourages hikers to use the Timpanoosneeke Trail this year which is more scenic and offers an easier climb. The trail begins at the Timpanoosneeke Campground in American Fork Canyon, goes up to Emerald Lake and then to the summit. The Aspen Trail, although about a quarter of a mile shorter, is a steeper climb and, due to heavy traffic in past years, there has been much soil movement and plant destruction.

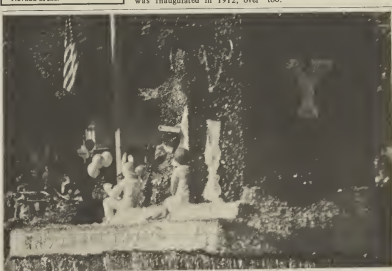

Proceeding the hike will be two programs, one on July 30 in the old BYU stadium and the other July 31 in Aspen Grove amphitheater. Both will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Some Came West
The two pageants will follow the theme "...And Some Came West." They will feature the Sounds of Freedom singing group that toured the Orient, a men's quartet called Inaugury, and many talented students of the summer student body at BYU as well as townspeople. The Legend of Timpanogos, which will feature dances by the Order of the Arrow, will be recreated at the pageant, too.

...and, for those who don't sleep in, there is the traditional July 24 parade in Salt Lake City, starting at 9:30 a.m. The parade is one of the largest parades in the nation and over 150 floats will be competing, including the BYU float pictured here. The parade will be led by President Joseph Fielding Smith of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and will feature many local dignitaries. Another dignitary visiting Salt Lake tomorrow is President Richard Nixon.

Friday's A Holiday!

The Daily Universe OPINION

Students, "System" Meet In Politics

July 18 the state Democratic convention held in Salt Lake City saw the partial realization of a fond hope of many concerned citizens and government leaders around the country.

Their hope is that all students who are dissatisfied with society and government, would work within the system and help it instead of trying to tear the system apart.

That is exactly what happened July 18 when about 200 student delegates to the Democratic convention actively took part in the framing of the party platform and the nomination of its candidates.

The students were not just being given token recognition; they were delegates whose votes counted just as much as any other delegate. And they made a considerable impact.

There was hardly a plank in the platform, as it was finally approved, that did not have the imprint of student thinking.

Many of their points might be considered radical and ultra-liberal by some. In fact, we do not entirely agree with them. But that is not the point. The point is that the students worked within the system. They caused no ruckus; they insulted no one.

Among their group many could be seen with long hair and even a few in slovenly attire. Most of them certainly could not be compared to a typical BYU student.

Yet again, that is not the point. The point is that they had enough energy, enough concern, and enough courage to meet the "establishment" on its own ground. And they did it in a manner worthy of praise.

We are delighted to see such action. We have only one regret. As far as we could tell, there was only a handful of BYU students there and only one was a delegate. Most of the student delegates were from the University of Utah and some were from Weber State. This is a sad reflection on the BYU student body. In a time when our country faces one of its worst crises and in a time when church leaders of every faith are urging us to seek the election of good, honest men who are full of integrity, we here at "God's University" appear to be full of apathy and neglect.

We are reminded of the parable in the New Testament of the unjust steward, wherein the Lord said, "For the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light." He said this to emphasize to his disciples that the children of the world are wiser because at least they are energetic in what they do and not lazy and complacent as so often are the children of light.

This is not to imply that the convention-goers were not "children of light" but this parable might well be applied to the BYU student body. Our best efforts have uncovered only about 25 students who are actively involved in the election work of this year. Twenty-five out of a summer student body of 10,000.

BYU... the next time you hear of a student riot, the next time you see a polluted river or a smog bank, the next time you disagree with the war policy, foreign policy or domestic policy of your government... feel a twinge of guilt.

Movie In Problems Raises Problems Too

Five hundred dollars is not much—if you say it quickly—but it is a princely sum when it comes from student body funds and is to be used for making a movie one knows little about.

At its July 15 meeting, the Executive Council resolved to scrape up $500 towards the cost of a movie showing the alleviation of poverty in Utah Valley. The movie is intended to demonstrate how the Utah Division of Family Services, Brigham Young University and the communities overcome problems in poverty areas.

BYU's involvement is not, as one might think, in solving the problems of poverty-stricken students, but the students' efforts to help the rural poor.

This edition of The Daily Universe was well on its way to completion by the time the Executive Council met Wednesday night, and we were therefore not in a position to comment on the meeting. However, we were given to understand that the meeting would see the introduction of a proposal rejecting the July 15 resolution.

We support such a move. We do so because we believe that there are too many questions yet to be answered regarding the total economic and moral backing for the movie.

The Executive Council gave its $500 support on the basis that budget-tight KBYU was providing the lion's share of $2,000 towards the cost of the documentary.

However, it would appear that KBYU's offer consisted not of money, but the proffered services of men and equipment.

And how many people have seen a script? How many people will be actually involved in this "student-oriented project"? Of what real value will it be to BYU and the student body? Where is the money coming from?

We believe that the summer student government does not have the funds to spend on this or any other movie—regardless of the honorable intentions of its originators.

"Stars of the summer night!"

Far in yon azure depths..."

Confidence In Youth

Prophet Views Mankind

"What the world needs today is to draw nearer to the Lord and live more fully true Christian principles."

This was the message of President Joseph Fielding Smith of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), gave Saturday on the eve of his 94th birthday.

President Smith said that faith in Christ has not increased in the world, nor has righteousness, nor obedience to God. "If we are to survive the forces of evil and the contention at home and abroad, this is a good time, yes a vital time, to turn to the Lord. He will help us fight our battle to cleanse the world of despotism and make it a more fit abode for all who love the principles of truth, righteousness, freedom and peace."

The Church leader explained that it is "true that we are living in the most enlightened age the world has ever seen, but this is only in regard to the many material and physical advances." He acknowledged that great progress has been made in mechanics, chemistry, physics, surgery and other fields with man being able to control many of the elements and make trips to the moon.

"Yes," he said, "this is a wonderful age. However all of these discoveries, inventions and accomplishments have not brought us peace nor true happiness. They have not helped men get closer to God, nor created humility and have not turned us away from evil. Nearly everywhere it seems, which has been given that should be a blessing to man, has been turned to evil purposes and is even being used to bring destruction to the human race."

The aged leader, looking back over his long life of religious and community service, expressed his joy in living in this day—"A day when the gospel is on the earth in its fullness, and when men have a right, through faithfulness and prayer, to receive inspiration and enlightenment from their Eternal Father who loves them. I have had a good life, a busy time full of joy and satisfaction in the Lord's service."

He looks forward to a continued era of progress and growth for the Church he leads. "There is no reason, if we are faithful and diligent, why our growth should not be greater in the next decade than it was in the one just concluded." During the decade of the 60's the Mormon Church growth was a remarkable 74 per cent.

Looking ahead, President Smith sees as the greatest challenge of the time the keeping of the commands of the Lord. The Ten Commandments, he said, have never been abrogated by the Lord and we are expected to live by them just as much today as before.

To the youth, not only of a Church, but of the nation and the world, the Church leader added, "they keep the commandments the Lord and walk humbly in the light of the truths of the Gospel. He expressed his confidence in youth of the nation despite the disturbing influences of a minority of dissidents. As expressed this confidence emphasized the important role parents in properly guiding and influencing their children, entitled to the love and care of their parents."

"Children have the right to blessings and happiness of a home, established on the religious principles. They are entitled to the love and care of faithful parents. When the blessings are lost the whole community suffers and the integrity of government is weakened. It is a shame, a disgrace that so much evil coming from broken homes, this comes largely because they have forgotten God and the obligations to serve and honor him," he said.

Speaking in a broader sense the value of religious worship to the nations of the world, President Smith said, "It is to a country cannot get along of its religion. The higher ideals, the nearer we obtain divine law, and the stronger our spiritual forces. No Christian country can forsake the doctrine of Jesus Christ and not suffer. Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord. Let us make nation all that it was destined to be, a land of freedom, a Christian nation. This will come if we humble ourselves and learn to be obedient to divine law."

MONSTERS

Editor:

I would like to voice my concern for the terribly inconvenient vending machines in the Richards P.E. Building. Times again I have lost money and valuable time while trying to transact business with those miserable mechanical monsters.

Of course I always regain my loss at the food services office in the Wilkinson Center. They are very nice there. I wonder what they would say if they knew what went through those machines' heads at me. I just know they do...

I am personally on a boycott of the aforementioned trouble-makers and I petition the support of the student body in my endeavor. I am an easy person to get along with except when it comes to a machine that gobbles up my money and just sits there and laughs at me! I just know that those machines laugh at me. I just know they do...

BYU Summer Musicians

Concert Applauded

Barring that it was the Wednesday night before first session final exams, BYU's Summer Concert Band and Orchestra entertained the largest turnout yet to a summer concert, according to Ralph G. Laycock, of the Music Department.

BYU has fielded a summer band symphony orchestra for four summers, but "this year's band and orchestra have been superior over those of previous summers," Laycock, director of both groups, told The Daily Universe.

The Concert Band opened the evening before the 200 guests in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC with the strutting, "The January, February March" by Gillis.

No sooner had the tempo accelerated when a percussionist toppled the tenor drum almost in the lap of the clarinet section. But the band's booming sound muffled the misce nicely.

After the thundering number that nearly ripped the walls of the tiny recital hall, Laycock turned to the audience. "I've been a little concerned lately. They just put in some new acoustical tiling and I was afraid you wouldn't be able to hear us," he quipped.

The band's variety in selection was a definite plus sign for the concert and it's finale "Round and Round" by McRae trilled between clarinets and flutes before breaking away and galloping to an abrupt staccato ending.

BYU's Summer Symphony Orchestra masterfully opened the second half with quick-stepping "Slavonic Dance No. 8"

Nixon Thanks 1,000 Y Students

President Richard Nixon sent BYU a thousand thanks this week.

They arrived in 13 bundles of personally addressed and stamped envelopes containing thank you notes for BYU students who signed a petition last May supporting Nixon's Vietnam stand.

Embellished with a gold Presidential Seal, the engraved notes read:

"Your encouragement for our country's goals in Southeast Asia means a great deal to America's fighting men as well as to me. I was pleased to hear from you and I want you to know how much your comments are appreciated. "With my best wishes, (signed) Richard Nixon."

The letters arrived addressed to the individual students, care of Brigham Young University.
